

THE SKIN OF OUR TEETH

Thornton Wilder's 1942 superb Pulitzer Prize winning drama about life and survival returns to Broadway in a new production. Lileana Blain-Cruz, Lincoln Center Theater's innovative Resident Director, directs a cast of 28 in this story revolving around the Antrobus family as they encounter the challenges of "nothing less than the apocalypse, dinosaurs, war, a woolly mammoth, the Ice Age and raising two kids in suburban Excelsior, New Jersey. It is mayhem, sometimes absurd and funny and sometimes deeply moving, but it is always real."

Combining the comic with the bittersweet and moving forward and back in time and place, THE SKIN OF OUR TEETH is an ultimately hopeful play about family and the resilience of the human condition.
